

SPECIAL EDITION- 2024

I am going to leave

World

MAGAZINE

►PUTIN
GREATEST ENEMY

SPECIAL GIFT
MARK RUTTE
NATO CHIEF

ISBN 817525766-0

9 788175 257665

BlackRock about the investments
the same shit

I say.. I miss everyone of you

Mark Rutte
FROM The Hague to NATO

WAR | BUSINESS | POLITICS | NATO | RUSSIA

Prof. Gentian Zyberi on X jun 18- 2024:

It is not all doom and gloom, peeps. In happy news for today, it seems NATO has found its new warmonger-in-chief, to replace Stoltenberg. I'm sure Rutte will do an excellent job for the arms industry just like his predecessor.

Gentian Zyberi

Professor - Norwegian Centre for Human Rights Current position and functions

- Professor of International Law and Human Rights, Norwegian Centre for Human Rights.
- Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration (2016-2028).
- Member of the Scientific Committee of the EU Fundamental Rights Agency (2023-2028).
- President, Albanian branch of the International Law Association (2014-).

Yes to Peace! No to NATO! No to NATO's warmongering London summit

Wednesday, November 27, 2019

Statements

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) will continue to mark its 70th years with a Heads of State and Government summit in London on 3-4 December 2019. For 70 years, NATO has been the number one aggressive military tool of imperialism. It is the largest and most dangerous military organization in the world. Despite rivalries between its individual members and the contradictions these from time to time present, it remains inherently and deeply interconnected with the policies of the US and EU, its so-called 'European arm'. NATO is responsible for wars of aggression against countries and their peoples – including Yugoslavia, Afghanistan and Libya – leaving an immense legacy of death, suffering, destruction and long-term environmental pollution and degradation. NATO has continuously added members and partners and expanded its sphere of influence and intervention across the world. NATO leads the arms race and global military spending, burdening the peoples. In 2018, the total war-related spending by all 29 NATO members totalled $963 billion, 53% of worldwide

Yes to Peace! No to NATO! No to NATO's warmongering London summit

World Peace Council

military spending – more than the remaining 164 countries of the world. Only NATO European members and Canada will spend 100 billion dollars more on militarism by the end of 2020. At its London summit NATO will celebrate its superior military forces' readiness for war. As its Secretary General has pointed out, "For the first time in history", NATO achieved "combat-ready battle-groups; increased its presence in the east; tripled the size of the NATO Response Force; increased defence spending in all NATO allied countries for five years in a row and stationed more US troops in Europe". On the warmongering agenda of the next summit, and among other issues, the use of space, cyberspace and artificial intelligence for military purposes are up for discussion. The US, with NATO support, withdraws from the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty (INF), a decision that poses a serious threat of a nuclear escalation and of the redeployment of US missiles in Europe, as happened with the Pershing II missiles in the 1980s, leading to mass peace demonstrations in defence of peace and disarmament. The US and its NATO allies relentlessly increase their military activities and expand their bases and installations from the Caspian Sea to the Arctic, closer and closer to Russia, but also in the Asia-Pacific region, tightening the encirclement of China. This vast network of foreign military bases, the naval fleets, the so-called anti-missile systems and the systems of global surveillance, which the US and its allies in NATO have spread across Europe and the world, are instruments of their strategy of world domination. NATO's objectives today are openly aggressive and its arena of warmongering stretches across the whole planet.

Source: WPC

November 2019

Secretary General celebrates NATO's 75th anniversary with Allied leaders on the eve of the Washington Summit

09 Jul. 2024 - | Last updated: 10 Jul. 2024 04:25

Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg celebrated NATO's 75th anniversary with US President Joe Biden and all other Allied Heads of State and Government in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday (9 July 2024).

In a speech at the Mellon Auditorium, where the North Atlantic Treaty was signed in 1949, the Secretary General underlined that NATO is "not only the most successful and strongest, but also the longest-lasting Alliance in history". He acknowledged that NATO's enduring success has never been a given, but is rather "the result of deliberate choices and difficult decisions" – from NATO's creation to arms control negotiations, and from NATO's enlargement at the end of the Cold War to NATO's support to Ukraine today.

Warning that "there are no cost-free options with an aggressive Russia as a neighbour; there are no risk-free options in a war," the Secretary General said that the biggest cost and greatest risk will be if Russia wins in Ukraine, as this would embolden President Putin but also other authoritarian leaders in Iran, North Korea, and China. "The time to stand for freedom and democracy is now; the place is Ukraine," he said. Mr Stoltenberg concluded by saying that the Alliance will continue to face difficult questions in the future, but that "we are stronger and safer together, in NATO."

At the end of the event, President Biden presented Mr Stoltenberg with the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the United States' highest civilian honour, in recognition of his decade of service at the helm of the Alliance.

Earlier in the day, the Secretary General met with US Secretary of State Antony Blinken. They discussed the decisions to be taken at the Summit to "strengthen our Alliance for the future", including on deterrence and defence, support for Ukraine and strengthening NATO's partnership in the Indo-Pacific. The Secretary General also participated in the firstever NATO Summit Defence Industry Forum, hosted by the US Chamber of Commerce. He spoke to industry representatives, Allied defence ministers and others about NATO's new defence industry pledge aimed at building greater transatlantic defence industrial cooperation, and welcomed that "just today, the (NATO procurement agency) NSPA signed a new multinational contract for Stinger missiles worth almost 700 million dollars."

Source: NATO

Rogue State: A Guide to the World's Only Superpower Paperback – October 16, 2001

by William Blum (Author)

